Better Than Ever.

Those who have not heard the records the Columbia Phonograph Company is now supplying have no conception of the changes and improvements that have recently been made. The Graphophone in the meantime, has been correspondingly improved. Machines and records which were thought to be almost perfect, a few years ago are far out done in these times of unflinching progress.

Send $5 with your order to the Columbia Phonograph Co., No. 110 E. Baltimore street, Baltimore, and goods will be shipped C. O. D. for the balance. 3t

THE MAN WHO WORRIED.

"Oh, if I might put grief away
And bid adieu to care."
The man who worried sighed, one day,
"The world would be so fair!
But peace avoids my yearning breast,
And happiness goes by—
Ah, shall I ever find the rest
I long for ere I die?"

"Why grieve?" the sage who heard replied;
"Has not your toll availed?
The ones you love are by your side,
Where have your efforts failed?
I see around you luxuries
That many a man would deem
The rich and restful properties
Of some enchanting dream."

"My efforts have been fairly paid,
My woes are not alone
From errors I myself have made,
Of chances that are down—
But there's my neighbor! Day by day
He mounts—his fortunes grow—
How can I drive my gloom away
While he outstrips me so?"

Only one man of the party seemed to have no further interest in what was going on outside. With one hand still grasping the edge of the upright partition between two sections near the forward end, and the other just letting go, apparently, of the bell cord, the tall, slender, well-built young soldier, with dark-brown eyes and softly curling lashes, was lowering himself into the aisle. The brakeman proceeded to rebuke him on the spot.

"Look here, young feller. You'll have to keep your hands off that bell cord. Here I've been cussin' things for keeps, thinkin' it was knotted or caught. It was just you had hold of it. Don't you know better'n that? Ain't you ever traveled before?"

The man addressed was stowing something away inside the breast of his shirt. He did it with almost ostentatious deliberation, quietly eying the brakeman before replying. Then, slowly readjusting the knot of a fine black silk necktie, so that its broad, flapping ends spread over the coarser material of the garment, he slowly looked the justly exasperated brakeman over from head to foot and as slowly and placidly answered:

"Not more than about half around the world. As for your bell cord, it was knotted; it caught in that ring. I saw that some one was tugging and trying to get it loose, so I swung up there and straightened it. Just what you'd have done under the circumstances, I fancy."

The brakeman turned redder under the ruddy brown of his sun-tanned skin. This was no raw "rookie" after all. In his own vernacular, as afterwards expressed to the conductor, "I seen I was up ag'in the real 'ting dis time," but it was hard to admit it at the moment. Vexation had to have a vent. The bell cord no longer served. The supposed meddler had proved a help. Something or somebody had to be the victim of the honest brakeman's spleen, so, somewhat unthinkingly, as events determined, he took it out on the company and that decrepit car, now buzzing along with much complaint of axle and of bearing.

"Damn this old shake-down, anyhow!" said he. "The company ought to know 'nough not to have such things lyin' round loose. Some night it'll fall to pieces and kill folks." And with this implied apology for his aspersions of Recruit Foster, the brakeman bustled away.

But what he said was heard by more than one, and remembered when perhaps he would have wished it forgotten. The delay at Ogden was supplemented by a long halt before the setting of that blazing sun, necessitated by the firing of the waste in the boxes of those long-neglected trucks. Far back as the rear-most sleeper the sickening smell of burning, oil-steeped packing drove feminine occupants to their satchels in search of scent-bottles, and the men to such comfort as could be found in flasks of bulkier make.

In the heart of the desert, with dust and desolation spreading far on every hand, the long train had stopped to douse those foul-smelling fires, and, while train-hands pried off the red-hot caps and dumped buckets of water into the blazing cavities, changing malodorous smoke to dense clouds of equally unsavory steam, and the recruits in the afflicted car found consolation in "joshing" the hard-sweating, hard-sweating workers, the young officer who had boarded the second sleeper at Ogden, with half a dozen bipeds in dusts or frazzled shirt-sleeves, had become involved in a complication on the shadier side of the train.

Somewhere into the sage-brush a jack-rabbit had darted and was now in hiding. With a dozen eager heads poked from the northward windows and stretching arms and index fingers guiding them in their inquiring hunt, the lieutenant and his few associates were stalking the first four-footed object sighted from the train since the crossing of the bald divide.

Within the heated cars, with flushed faces and plying palm-leaf fans, a few of the women passengers were languidly gazing from the windows. At the center window of the second sleeper, without a palm-leaf and looking serene and unperturbed, sat the young girl whose lovely face had so excited Mr. Stuyvesant's deep admiration. Thrice since leaving Ogden, on one pretext or other, had he passed her section and stolen such a look as could be given without obvious staring. Immediately in rear of the seat she occupied was an austere maiden of middle age, one of the passengers who had come on by the Union Pacific from Omaha. Directly opposite sat two men whom Stuyvesant had held in but scant esteem up to the time they left the valley of Salt Lake. Now, because their sections stood over against hers, his manner relaxed with his mood. Circumstances had brought the elderly maid and himself to the same table on two occasions in the dining-car, but he had hitherto felt no desire to press the acquaintance.

This afternoon he minded him of a new book he had in his bag, for literature, he judged, might be her hobby, and had engaged her in conversation, of which his share was meant to impress the tiny, translucent ear that nestled in the dark-brown coils and waves of the pretty head in front of him.

When, however, it became patent that his companion desired to form her own impressions of the pages influenced by his well-delivered comments, Mr. Stuyvesant had bethought him of the semisomnolent occupants of the opposite section, and some cabalistic signs he ventured with a little silver cup summoned them in pleased surprise to the water-cooler at the rear end, where he regaled them with a good story and the best of V. O. P. Scotch, and accepted their lavish bid to sit with them awhile.

From this coign of vantage he had studied her sweet, serious, oval face as she sat placidly reading a little volume in her lap, only once in awhile raising a pair of very dark, very beautiful, very heavily browsed and lashed brown eyes for brief survey of the forbidding landscape; then, with never an instant's peep at him, dropping their gaze again upon the book.

Not once in the long, hot afternoon had she vouchsafed him the minimum of a show of interest, curiosity, or even consciousness of his presence. Then the train made its second stop on account of the fires, and Bre'r Rabbit his luckless break into the long monotony of the declining day.

Tentative spikes, clods and empty flasks having failed to find him, the beaters had essayed a skirmish line, and with instant result. Like a meteoric puff of gray and white, to a chorus of yells and the accompaniment of a volley of missiles, Jack shot into space from behind his shelter and darted zigzagging through the brush. A whizzing spike, a chance shot that nearly grazed his nose, so dazzled his brain that the terrified creature doubled on his trail and came bounding back towards the train.

Close to the track-side ran a narrow ditch. In this ditch at the instant crouched the tall lieutenant. Into this ditch leaped Bunny, and the next second had whizzed past the stooping form and bored straight into a little wooden drain. There some unseen, unlooked-for object blocked him.

Desperately the hind-legs kicked and tore in the effort to force the passage, and with a shout of triumph the tall soldier swooped upon the prize, seized the struggling legs, swung the wretched creature aloft, and for the first time in six mortal hours met full in his own the gaze of the deep, beautiful brown eyes he had so striven to attract, and they were half pleading, half commanding for Bunny. The next instant, uninjured, but leaping madly for life, Bre'r Rabbit was streaking eastward out of harm's way, a liberated victim whose first huge leap owed much of its length to the impetus of Stuyvesant's long, lean, sinewy arm.

This time when he looked up and raised his cap, and stood there with his blonde hair blowing down over the broad white forehead, although the soft curves of the ripe, red lips at the window above him changed not, there was something in the dark-brown eyes that seemed to say: "Thank you!"

Yet when he would have met those eyes again that evening, when "Last call for dinner in the dining-car" was sounding through the train, he could not. Neither were they among those that peered from between parted curtains in the dim light of the sleeper, many in fright, all in anxiety, when somewhere in the dead of the summer night long after all occupants of the rear-most cars were wrapped in slumber, the long train bumped to a sudden jarring standstill, and up ahead there arose sound of rush, of excitement and alarm.

CHAPTER II.

It was just after sunset, when, for the second time, the hot boxes of the recruit car had been treated to liberal libations from the water-tank, and the belated train again moved on.

Dinner had been ready in the dining-car a full hour, but so long as the sickening smell of burning waste arose from the trucks immediately in front very few of the passengers seemed capable of eating. The car, as a consequence, was crowded towards eight o'clock, and the steward and waiters were busy men.

The evening air, drifting in through open windows, was cooler than it had been during the day, but still held enough of the noontide caloric to make fans a comfort, and Mr. Stuyvesant, dining at a "four-in-hand" table well to the front, and attempting to hold his own in a somewhat desultory talk with his fellow-men, found himself paying far more attention to the lovely face of the girl across the aisle than to the viands set before him.

She was seated facing the front, and opposite the austere maiden previously mentioned. Conversation had already begun, and now Stuysant was able to see that, beautiful in feature as was her face in repose, its beauty was far enhanced when animated and smiling.

When to well-nigh perfect external features there is added the charm of faultlessly even and snowy teeth and a smile that illumines the entire face, shining in the eyes as it plays about the pretty, sensitive mouth, a young woman is fully equipped for conquest.

Stuyvesant gazed in fascination uncontrollable. He envied the prim, precise creature who sat unbending, severe, and, even while keeping up a semblance of interest in the conversation, seemed to feel it a duty to display disapprobation of such youthful charms.

No woman is so assured that beauty is only skin deep as she who has none of it. Her manner, therefore, had been decidedly stiff, and from that had imperceptibly advanced to condescension, but when the steward presently appeared with a siphon of iced seltzer, and, bowing deferentially, said he hoped everything was to Miss Ray's liking, and added that it seemed a long time since they had seen the captain and supposed he must be a colonel now, the thin eyebrows of the tall maiden were uplifted into little arches that paralleled the furrows of her brow as she inquired:

"Miss Ray?—from Fort Leavenworth?"

The answer was a smiling nod of assent as the younger lady buried her lovely, dark face in the flowers set before her by assiduous waiter, and Stuyvesant felt sure she was trying to control an inclination to laugh.

"Well, you must excuse me if I have been a little—slow," said the elder in evident perturbation. "You see—we meet such queer people traveling—sometimes. Don't you find it so?"

The dark face was dimpling now with suppressed merriment.

"Yes—occasionally," was the smiling answer.

"But then, being the daughter of an army officer," pursued the other, hurriedly, "you have to travel a great deal. I suppose you really—have no home?" she essayed in the half-hopeful tone to be expected of one who considered that a being so endowed by nature must suffer some compensatory discomforts.

"Yes and—no," answered Miss Ray, urbanely. "In one sense we army girls have no home. In another, we have homes everywhere."

It is a reproach in the eyes of certain severe moralists that a fellow-being should be so obviously content with his or her lot. The elder woman seemed to feel it a duty to acquaint this beaming creature with the manifest deficiency in her moral make-up.

"Yes, but I should think most any one would rather have a real home, a place where they weren't bounden to anybody, no matter if it was humbly." (She called it "humbly," and associated it in mind with the words of Payne's immortal song.) "Now, when I went to see Col. Ray about our society, he told me he had to break up everything, going to Cuba, but he didn't mention about your going west."

"Father was a little low in his mind that day," said Miss Ray, a shade of sadness passing over her face. "Both my brothers are in the service, and one is barely 17."

"Out at service!" interrupted the other. "You don't mean—"

"No," was the laughing answer, and in Miss Ray's enjoyment of the situation her eyes came perilously near seeking those of Mr. Stuyvesant, which she well knew were fixed upon her. "I mean that both are in the army."

"Well—I thought not—still—I didn't know. It's all rather new to me, this dealin' with soldiers, but I suppose I'll get to know all about it after a spell. Our society's getting much encouraged."

"Red Cross?" queried Miss Ray, with uplifted brows and evident interest, yet a suspicion of incredulity.

"Well, same thing, only we don't propose to levy contributions right and left like they do. I am vice president of the Society of Patriotic Daughters of America, you know. I thought perhaps your father might have told you. And our association is self-sustaining, at least it will be as soon as we are formally recognized by the government. You know the Red Cross hasn't any real standing, whereas our folks expect the president to issue the order right away, making us part of the regular hospital brigade. Now, your father was very encouraging, though some officers we talked to were too stuck up to be decent. When I called on Gen. Drayton he just as much as up-and told me we'd only be in the way."

Just here, it must be owned, Miss Ray found it necessary to dive under the table for a handkerchief which she had not dropped.

Mr. Stuyvesant, ignoring the teachings of his childhood and gazing over the rim of his coffee cup, observed that she was with difficulty concealing her merriment. Then, all of a sudden, her face, that had been so full of radiance, became suddenly clouded by concern and distress. The door at the head of the car had swung open and remained so, despite the roar and racket of the wheels and the sweep of dust and cinders down the aisle. The steward glanced up from his cupboard opposite the kitchen window at the rear, and quickly motioned to some one to shut that door. A waiter sprang forward, and then came the steward himself. The look in the girl's face was enough for Stuyvesant. He whirled about to see what had caused it, and became instantly aware of a stout-built soldier swaying uneasily at the entrance and in thick tones arguing with the waiter. He saw at a glance the man had been drinking, and divined he was there to get more liquor. He was on the point of warning the steward to sell him none, but was saved the trouble. The steward bent down and whispered:

"This makes the second time he's come in since six o'clock. I refused to let him have a drop. Can't something be done to keep him out? We can't lock the door, you know, sir."

Stuyvesant quickly arose and stepped up the aisle. By this time everybody was gazing towards the front entrance in concern and curiosity. The colored waiter was still confronting the soldier as though to prevent his coming farther into the car. The soldier, with flushed and sodden face and angry eyes, had placed a hand on the broad shoulders of the servant and was clumsily striving to put him aside.

IT WAS A SLOW HORSE.

One of the New Stories That Is Related About Abraham Lincoln.

A citizen of Brownstown, Ind., says the Indianapolis Press, sends the following anecdote of Abraham Lincoln:

Abraham Lincoln used to be fond of telling a story of a lawyer in a western town who desired the nomination for county judge. On the morning preceding the evening on which the county convention was to meet the lawyer applied to the livery stable keeper in his village for a horse and buggy in which to drive to the county town, 16 miles distant, where the convention was to be held.

"Give me the best and the fastest horse you have, Sam," said he, "so that I will have time to go around and see the boys before the convention begins."

The liveryman, however, was supporting a rival candidate and gave a lawyer a horse that outwardly appeared perfect, but broke down before half the journey was completed, so that when the candidate arrived the convention had adjourned and his rival had been nominated.

On his return to the stable late the following afternoon, knowing that it was useless to resent the trick played on him, he said to the owner:

"Look here, Smith, you must be training this horse for the New York market. You expect to sell him to an undertaker for a horse, don't you? Well, it's time wasted. I know from his gait that you have spent days training him to pull a hearse, but he'll prove a dead failure. He's already so slow he couldn't get a corpse to the cemetery in time for the resurrection."

Evidence of the Book.

It is said that Ibsen, the Scandinavian playwright, is not always friendly toward the English. Something which happened to him lately may increase that lack of liking or, if he is a man of a humorous mind, do something to lessen it.

One day a certain Lincolnshire squire who goes to Norway every year for the fishing called upon the distinguished man. Ibsen was in good humor, and received him cordially. Not only that, but he complimented his guest, saying:

"How well you speak Swedish."

"It was to learn this," said the Englishman, producing from his pocket a copy of Ibsen's poem, "Brand."

The author was naturally gratified, and owned it the next day in telling the story at the cafe.

"But," he added, ruefully, "it was a new copy!"—London Outlook.

Prune Your Possibilities.

As a rule, after a man has reached his meridian, he will go on doing as he has done before; he has become practically a slave to his environment and habits of life. Prune your sapling, before time has made its rings and hardened the fibers of the tree. The most beautiful flowers and the finest fruit are the results of judicious pruning in the springtime of the life of the plant or tree. The finest manhood and womanhood can be developed by a wise use of the pruning knife in youth, and the benefits will be found in old age.—Success.

An Appreciated Dedication.

Pietro Mascagni, whose fame came with the production of "Cavalleria Rusticana," has grown weary of his critics, and as a response to them has dedicated his new opera: "The Masks," to himself. This is the dedication:

"To myself. With distinguished esteem and unalterable satisfaction."—London News.

Notice.

To Policy Holders in Old Line Companies: Beware of the confidence game played by the pious Insurance Agent who wants to do you the favor of switching you from your company to his. All companies write numerous plans of insurance and every plan costs a different price. You get value received for any plan you buy, from any Old Line Company. When the confidence man shows you a plan differing from the one you have, which is part of the game, and should you prefer this particular plan write to the Agent or Company who insured you and get it, and thereby save what you paid. Don't be an easy mark. There are millions of dollars lost each year by policyholders being duped by confidence men.

A "Trunkless" Body.

An explorer, lately returned from his travels, was relating his adventures.

"I peered," said he, "into the thick- et, and there before me lay a trunkless body."

"Nonsense," remarked an interfering critic; "who ever heard of a trunkless body?"

"My friend," replied the traveler, quietly, "the body was that of an elephant."

He then resumed his story.—London Globe.

Brick.

When the Goose laid the golden egg, the Peasant did not hide his profound chagrin.

"I would rather that thou hadst laid a gold brick!" exclaimed he, for he was devoted to the traditions of his craft.

"I thought of that," replied the Goose; "but, you see, I am not a member of the Bricklayers' union!" At this the Peasant stupidly lost his temper and killed the Goose.—Puck.

Something Yet to Learn.

"Millie," said her elderly uncle, "has that Cooperative Cooking company you joined a few months ago declared any dividends yet?"

"O, yes," replied the young woman who was managing her own finances. "I got a circular from the secretary the other day telling me that the company was in splendid condition and had called an assessment of ten per cent. That's the same thing, isn't it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Commendation.

We greet the man who finds no fault, With praise, and all the rest of it. But the kisser whom we never exalt Still, somehow, gets the best of it.—Washington Star.

SOFT ANSWER.

She—I hear that you were talking about me to the countess.
He—Could I have a finer topic of conversation?—Lestige Blaetter.

Worst of the Lot.

There's the woman with a mission, And the woman with a fad; Either makes the chap who weeds her Wish perhaps he never had. But far worse than all the others Of this freak-infested age Is the bold ex-wife who imagines She can elevate the stage.—Chicago Daily News.

An Easy Way Out.

Maid (breathlessly)—Oh, miss, both the gents you're engaged to has called, and they're in the parlor, and somehow or other they've found it out, and oh, miss, I'm 'fraid there'll be trouble! Miss Flirtie—Horror! Oh, dear! What shall I do?
Maid (after reflection)—I'll fix it. I'll run an' tell 'em you're cryin' y'r eyes out 'cause y'r father has lost all his money.—Tit-Bits.

Willie's Case.

"I think," she said, "that Willie gave me more trouble when he was little than all of my other children together."

"And what about him now?"

"Oh, I never worry about him now. Sometimes I get to fretting for fear some of the others may be working themselves to death, but Willie's all right. He has a political job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Why They Don't Marry.

Miss Leftover—You are a woman-hater, I hear.

Mr. Slimpurse—That is a mistake. I merely cannot afford to marry.

Miss Leftover—Cannot you support a wife?

Mr. Slimpurse—Oh, yes, I could support a wife easy enough, but I haven't income enough to support the two or three other women she would need to wait on her.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Modest Request.

"I'm sorry I took the horse," said the culprit, "but let's compromise this matter. If there's any hanging to be done, let me do it."

"Sulicide?" queried the leader of the vigilantes.

"Oh, no. Suppose you allow me to hang my head with shame, and let it go at that."—Philadelphia Press.

Sticking to Etiquette.

"At last we shall have a chance," said Mrs. Newcomb, "to get acquainted with the Snipelegs."

"How?" her husband asked. "Has she finally seen fit to call on you?"

"No; but they're going to build a new and bigger house across the street from the one they occupy now, and when they go there to live I can call because etiquette gives the ones that live anywhere the right to call first on others that just move in, you know."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Great Unwashed.

The anarchist respects no laws. Nor fears the hangman's rope. Perhaps he courts death thus because "While there is life there's hope."—Philadelphia Press.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

"The baby at your house is awfully small for its age!"

"Yes, but my mistress insists on bringing it up on condensed milk!"—Megendorfer Blaetter.

The Editor's Mistake.

"I'll paste this fellow once," he said, (He was the wily editor)
"I'll swap him fore and aft, by Jove!" (The wily editor was the creditor)
"I'll rip him up the back," he said, (He grabbed his trenchant pen)
"I'll spare no lurid epithet;" (He grabbed some paper then)
"I'll swap him and I'll paste him." (But he showed such reckless haste That when he reached out for the ink His pen stuck in the paste.)—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Prettier Pictures.

A little girl went visiting one day, and after a time was given the album of family photographs to look at. She turned the leaves over carefully, and pretty soon closed the book.

"Well, dear," asked the hostess, "did you look at the album?"

"Oh, yes," answered the little maid, brightly; "and we've got one 'zactly like it, only the pictures are prettier."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Both Guilty.

He had stolen several Krs. From a gay Chicago Mrs. And the lady, though she really was astounded, Said she'd waive all prosecution If he'd make due restitution; And the felony was speedily compounded.—Philadelphia Press.

POSSIBLE INDIGESTION.

Landlady (to Mr. Tutts, who has just engaged board)—Will you begin boarding immediately?

Mr. Tutts—No, I have some meal tickets which I must eat up first.—Chicago Daily News.

Lavishness.

The man who thinks he knows it all Is a most generous elf. He shares advice with great and small And keeps none for himself.—Washington Star.

No Taste for Mathematics.

"How many times did you vote in the recent election?"

The prisoner was silent.

"Answer the question! How many times did you vote?"

"Marse Tom," pleaded the prisoner, addressing the judge, "ain't you know me long enough ter know dat I don't know nuttin' 'tall 'bout 'rithmetics?"—Atlanta Constitution.

His Style of Culture.

Nell—Maude married a man of culture.

Bess—Why, I was under the impression she married a farmer.

Nell—So she did, but isn't a farmer a man of agri-culture?—Chicago Daily News.

BOSTON MAN AND CAPSULES.

Took His Medicine After His Own Fashion and Found It Very Hot Stuff.

He told the other patients at the sanitarium that he was from Boston, and said it much as he might have said: "I am president of the United States." But his fellows of unsound bodies did not show the least readiness to fall down on worshipful knees. Even had he been one of the elect of Boston, thoroughly starched and ironed as to his mind, it is doubtful if they would have made genuflections, for Boston is the better part of 4,000 miles from southern California, and its awe-inspiring radiance is a weakly spluttering candle-light by the time it has crossed the continent. And he was not one of the elect, says Leroy M. Scott, in Woman's Home Companion. "From Boston!" cried a rheumatic young civil engineer, also from that city. "Looks more like a man from Posey county, Ind., or," he corrected himself, "like a product of the tropical zone—the land of eternal green."

Perhaps the young civil engineer spoke sarcastically, for at times his rheumatism played on his nerves as though they were banjo-strings; but he spoke very near the truth. Despite his proud origin and an unlimited amount of money "green" fitted the self-proclaimed Bostonian as if it were a word tailored for him expressly. His trousers were so bagged at the knee that they looked knobby; his shoes were of that once common sort known as "Congress"; his face was a lurid sunset-red; and if that little book on etiquette, called "Don't," had been destroyed to the last copy it could easily have been reconstructed from observation of his manners. Yet he said he was from Boston; and as a further proclamation of this fact he always carried with him a volume of Emerson's essays—a book which no one ever saw him read.

One day he sent word to the medical director of the sanitarium that he was feeling decidedly out of sorts. The medical director came, looked him over, asked a few questions, and went away. A few minutes later a nurse brought to the Boston man's room a small box of capsules that contained a white powder. In accordance with the time directions on the box, half an hour later he proceeded to take two of the capsules, and to take them after his own fashion, for this was his first experience with them. He carefully emptied the contents of the two into a spoon, added a little water, and then emptied the spoon into his mouth.

Immediately he fell upon his bed, and writhed and coughed and called aloud. A nurse attending a patient in an adjoining room hurried in in response to his cries.

"Water!" he gasped. The nurse hastily poured him a glassful of water, which he gulped down. Then she called the physician. When that gentleman rushed in, the man from Boston indignantly demanded:

"See here"—a fit of coughing—"what did you give me that infernally hot stuff for?"

The doctor's quick eyes lit upon the empty capsules, and he instantly knew the cause of the trouble.

"You fool!" he cried, in exasperation. The doctor specified the exact variety of fool, but there is no use writing down his word, for the editor would cross it out. "You fool! Of course it's hot! That's why I put it up in capsules! What did you take it out for?"

A knowing look came over the face of the man from Boston. "Say, now," he demanded, sarcastically, "you don't suppose I wanted that ising-glass down in my stomach, do you?"

WRILLS OF FASHION.

Fash. Materials for Costumes and Wraps for the Current Season.

Shaggy felts and silky beavers are undoubtedly the favorite autumn hat materials.

Black velvet applique is in evidence at all the shops, and there are, too, beautiful velvet appliques of softly shaded colors which promise stunning effects upon gowns in white or soft pastel tints, says the New York Sun.

Many cloth and wool costumes have their edges cut in square tabs, which are about an inch apart. The tabs are stitched down on an under band of contrasting color in silk, often dotted in black, steel or silver. The effect is easily obtained by an ordinary dress-maker, yet is decidedly modish.

White net dotted all over with tiny jet spots and with a border of black lace applied on the white ground and heavily encrusted with jet is among the most exquisite of the new robe materials.

Silver tissue is being much used as a background for the fine laces and embroideries of the season. Parisian makers are turning out pictureque ermine-bordered tippets, large collars and huge muffs of velvet.

The silk Bruges lace is not only used in its creamy tint, but is also colored to correspond with the material to which it is applied, and on certain imported models it appears in soft tints, shading from palest cream to deep orange. In some instances silver threads are woven through the lace, which, in its natural color has almost the sheen of silver.

Raisin Pie.

One cupful of seeded raisins, one-third of a cupful of water; cook for five minutes; have an ordinary pie tin lined with good paste, put in the stewed raisins, sprinkle with three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of flour, add upper crust and bake. This will keep as well as mince pie.—People's Home Journal.

OLDEST DOLL IN AMERICA.

"Georgia," Owned by Mrs. Lincoln, of Chelsea, Massachusetts, Has Existed in Three Centuries.

The oldest doll, as far as known, in any part of this country, is "Georgia," the property of Mrs. Alice L. Lincoln, of Chelsea, Mass.

"Georgia," being over a hundred years old, can well boast of having "lived" in three centuries. Four generations of children have petted and beaten her by turns, and, although her smiling countenance bears many a mark of "the whips and scorns of time," and her shapely brown head, with an occasional ugly dent, would seem to indicate that the skull might easily stand a little trepanning, nevertheless this children's idol of bygone days is in a remarkable state of preservation.

"Georgia" was originally a "southern lassie" and was raised in Milledgeville, Ga. "befo' de wah." She was given to Mrs. Lincoln's mother, in exchange for a ring, by Miss Weekes, an old schoolmate.

The latter's mother had previously paraded the doll in the doll carriage of her times, and perhaps if Georgia could only use the artificial tongue with which she is provided her previous family history might prove her rightful eligibility to the Society of Colonial Dames.

THE BOURBON NEWS.

PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

SWIFT CHAMP, EDITOR AND OWNER.

Attention, Democrats.

The Republican party of Bourbon county have at last secured a candidate for the Legislature in the person of Mr. U. S. G. Pepper, lately a resident of Bracken county.

They first nominated Robert Gorey, who declined the nomination; they then tendered it to Mr. C. Alexander, Jr., who respectfully declined to offer himself as a sacrifice in the interest of the small coterie of Republicans who are seeking to keep in touch with the Federal pie-counter.

But Mr. Pepper secured the signatures of 119 Republicans, composed in a great part of negroes, who draw pensions, and Federal office-holders, and by that means, got his name printed on the ballots.

If elected, Mr. Pepper will vote for Senator Deboe, or some other Republican, equally as bad, for United States Senator; for the repeal of the present election law, and in favor of an election law that will give the Republican party control of the election machinery of the State; for gerrymandering the State so as to secure more Republican Congressmen, more Republican members of the Legislature, more Republican Circuit Judges to turn loose Republican criminals, more Republican Judges of the Court of Appeals, to grant new trials to Republican murderers; for higher taxation to rob the poor and make the rich richer.

Mr. A. S. Thompson will vote against all these iniquities, and will represent the good old county of Bourbon in a manner that will reflect credit on himself and his constituents.

It was hoped that Mr. Pepper would refuse the "cold potato" nomination, after it had been peddled around and tendered to so many others, like Lawrence Horton did the nomination for Jailer, but he has not done so. It now remains for the Democrats of Bourbon to bury him under a deluge of ballots so deep that he will never attempt such a hopeless task again.

Besides electing a United States Senator, two Parson Commissioners and a State Librarian, the next Kentucky Legislature will be required to redistrict the State into Congressional, Judicial and Legislative districts; hence every Democrat in the State is vitally interested in the political complexion of the Legislative body which is to be elected next Tuesday. Walk up to the polls and cast your vote for Albert Thompson.

Now we know why Teddy Roosevelt wears eye-glasses. He's color blind.

The person who does not like the country at this season of the year has no eye for the beautiful in Nature.

It is all right to joke about a "nigger in the woodpile" but a "nigger" at a white man's dinner table is no joke.

On Sunday, President Roosevelt celebrated his forty-third birthday with a family dinner. It was not learned whether there were any colored guests present.

JOHN ALEXANDER DOWIE utilizes a time stamp in measuring the length of the prayers of his assistants. The modern Elijah conducts everything on a cash register basis.

The basis for the refusal to honor a requisition for Taylor is that he will not get justice. It may be, however, that this is another way of expressing the fear that he will.

The Fiscal Court elected next Tuesday will have to build a new court house for Bourbon county, or repair the old one at great expense to the tax payers.

The Democrats pay nine-tenths of the taxes in this county, and Democrats should be elected to the Fiscal Court to spend the money for Democrats.

Let every Democrat turn out next Tuesday and vote for a Democrat for Magistrate, and a Democrat for Legislature. Stamp under the Rooster.

ONE week from to-day and the election. Democrats do your duty. Let's roll up a big majority so that the Republicans can "go way back and sit down." Vote for Albert Thompson and the whole ticket.

THE SPECTATOR, published in London, Eng., says: The ballot should be temporarily withdrawn from the negro, although every office except the presidency should be open to him, but the white should be entitled to demand a trial by a white judge. Under these conditions the races would develop peaceably until the color rules were felt to be inconvenient and swept away.

WHEN the simple tiller of the soil realizes that HE must pay the price fixed by the plow trust for a plow and can obtain only the price fixed by the grain trust for HIS grain he may begin to think. The simple tiller of the soil is now up against just such a simple proposition. He should be able to understand it without the aid of a diagram.

Amusements.

Beginning next Monday night, the Grace Rentrow company of comedians will fill an engagement lasting one week at the Grand, at popular prices of 10-20-30 cents. This company comes exceptionally well recommended.

Lavinia Shannon, who is well-known in Paris, attended a reception to Hon. Richard Croker on Ladies' Day at the Democratic Club last week, in New York. She was the guest of Commissioner of Charities, John W. Keller, formerly of this city.

A large audience greeted Martin's Uncle Tom's Cabin company at the Opera House last night. Milt Barlow, who plays the part of "Uncle Tom," received an ovation. The show is the largest on the road, and besides being a very large company, they carry all of their scenery, and the production is a notable one. Mr. Barlow is looking well and does not seem to grow older. In early days he was a printer by trade and laid the cases on the old true Kentucky, in this city. His first marriage was in this city. When not traveling in the Summer months, he lives near Benton Harbor, Mich.

One of the finest attractions that has ever appeared at the Grand will be seen on Nov. 14th, when Mr. Otis Skinner and a company of stars will present Lawrence Barret's great success, "Francesca de Rimini." The management of the Grand is at a great expense to secure this attraction and should be encouraged by an overflowing house. The Equivocal says: "One of the genuine treats of the season is promised for the second week at Robinson's, as, beginning to-morrow night, Mr. Otis Skinner will present his highly lauded production of 'Francesca de Rimini.' The coming of Mr. Skinner means much to your intellectual theatre-goer. His annual engagements here are regarded as among the truly prized events of the season, and there may be found at the theatre where he appears to audiences a discriminating people, who have learned to appreciate the best in dramatic art."

The following assignments were made in the revenue service for the month of November: Storekeepers—Jas. M. Walker, J. P. Hutchcraft, at G. G. White Co.; W. A. Johnson, H. B. Croxton, N. A. Moore and C. T. Throckmorton at Paris Distilling Co. Gaugers—D. C. Berryman, G. G. White Co., and Paris Distilling Co.

Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting. Examinations free. Next visit Thursday, Oct. 31, 1901.

LIFE WAS SACRIFICED

Nineteen Persons Dead as the Result of a Fire in Philadelphia.

Police and Firemen Are Delving Into the Ruins and It Is Feared That Others Have Lost Their Lives.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Nineteen known dead and property loss amounting to upward of $500,000 is the awful result of a fire which occurred Friday in the business section of the city. The number of injured is not known definitely, but fully a score of victims were treated at various hospitals. Police and firemen were Friday night delving into the ruins in search of bodies supposed to have been buried beneath the debris, as it is feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames. The buildings destroyed were the eight-story structure, 1219 and 1221 Market street, occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers and furniture dealers, and three-story buildings occupied by small merchants. The big furniture building extended back a half block to Commerce street, and was owned by Henry P. Loas.

The blaze broke forth in the building occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co. and one hour later the horrible sacrifice of life had been made and the immense loss of property had been accomplished. The origin of the death dealing conflagration is unknown. It is said that an explosion of naphtha or gasoline in the basement was the cause, but this is denied by Mr. Wilkinson, who says there never was a sufficient quantity of either explosive about the building to be responsible for the terrible disaster. Rumor has it also that an elevator constructor at work in the basement permitted the flames of his lantern to communicate with some of the gaseous liquids stored in the basement and that this was the cause of the conflagration.

Such a disastrous fire attended with so great a loss of life in such a brief period was never before known in this city. Men and women died a lingering, agonizing death in the presence of thousands of spectators who were unable to lift a hand to their assistance. The rear of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co.'s building faces on Commerce street, a small thoroughfare. On the fire escapes at this building two men and one woman were fairly roasted to death while the horror-stricken throng on the street below turned sick at the sight. In the front on Market street a woman, driven to desperation, leaped from a window on the top floor and was dashed to death on the pavement. These are but a few of the heart-rending scenes attending the conflagration. Firemen claim to have seen men and women, unable to reach the windows or fire escapes, burned to death in the interior of the building. If this is so, little or nothing remains of these victims, and it is doubtful if any portion of their bodies will be recovered.

Shortly before midnight another body which was very badly burned was taken from the ruins. This makes the number known dead 19.

FIVE WERE KILLED.

Terrific Explosion in a Pennsylvania Mine—Besides the Dead Nine Persons Were Injured.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 26.—A terrific explosion of gas occurred in the Buttonwood mine of the Parrish Coal Co., situated one mile south of this city, which caused the death of five men and the injury of nine others.

Directly after the explosion occurred a number of rescuers, at the risk of their lives, entered the mine filled with dangerous after damp and brought out the bodies of the dead and injured.

So far as can be learned the explosion was caused by the carelessness of one of the Hungarian laborers, who was injured. He opened his safety lamp while at work in his chamber. This caused a small body of gas to explode, which, however, did not injure the men or cause any damage. The explosion was heard, however, by the foreman and his assistants, who rushed into the chamber only to encounter another larger body of gas which had accumulated from the first explosion. The second explosion was of such force that it hurled the men in all directions. The bodies of the dead were badly mangled.

Ex-President Cleveland Invited.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 26.—At a meeting of the senior class of the University of Nebraska, to whom is given the right to choose its orator, it was decided to extend an invitation to former President Grover Cleveland to deliver the commencement day address next June.

Shot Through the Head.

New York, Oct. 26.—Daniel Dodge, an 11-year-old boy, who was shot in the head by his companion, Willie Weston, while they were playing "William Tell and the Apple," at Far Rockaway, died at St. John's hospital from his injuries.

Heavy Failure.

New York, Oct. 26.—Thomas P. Jones, William C. Palmer and Thos. J. Bateman, wholesale dealers in groceries and coffee, assigned Friday. The firm was rated at from $125,000 to $200,000.

SECOND TRIAL ENDED.

Caleb Powers Again Receives a Life Sentence.

Attorneys For Defense Made a Motion For Another Trial, But It Was Overruled—May Go to the Appellate Court.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 28.—For the second time a jury of 12 men Saturday gave Caleb Powers a life sentence in the penitentiary for conspiracy to murder William Goebel. The jury was given the indictment and instructions, and retired at 2:20 Saturday afternoon to make a verdict. Very few of the immense crowd present left the courtroom, but waited and anxiously watched the door of the jury room.

At 3:04, just 44 minutes after retiring a juror opened the door and notified a deputy sheriff that a verdict had been reached. They filed into their accustomed seats, and a death-like hush pervaded the audience.

"Gentlemen, have you made a verdict?" asked Judge Cantrill.

"We have," answered Juror B. S. Calvert, a schoolmate of Powers, who had been made foreman. The slip of paper containing the verdict was handed to the clerk, who read: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty, and fix his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for life. B. S. Calvert, foreman."

At 4:30 Judge Sims filed the grounds and motion for a new trial, which were overruled. The grounds were that the jury were all democrats; that Judge Cantrill should have vacated the bench, and should have granted a continuance. Judge Cantrill then sentenced Powers, and when asked if he had any reason for not being sentenced, said he had reasons, but would not give them now. His attorneys prayed an appeal to the court of appeals, and were given till February 1 to file a bill of exceptions. Powers was remanded to the Frankfort jail for safe-keeping, and was taken there Saturday night.

THE ASSASSIN'S BODY.

After the Execution It Is the Intention to Bury the Remains in Quicklime.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The time that Leon F. Czolgosz, assassin of President McKinley, has to live, is reckoned by hours now, but there has been no relaxation of the stringent rule under which the prisoner has been secluded since his confinement. Auburn prison was closed Sunday to any one who sought the assassin and so it will remain until the prisoner has paid the penalty which the law exacts.

Immediately after the execution the clothing of the murderer, with the vast accumulation of mail that came to the prison for him will be burned and if possible the request of the parents of the dead man for his remains will be evaded. The body of the assassin will be buried in quicklime. It is feared that the removal of his body to Cleveland would lead to scenes of an unfortunate nature, and the prison officials are very anxious to avoid anything of the kind. The plan of burning the clothing and letters of the murderer will prevent the exhibition of relics by those who pander to the morbid.

The hour of 7 on Tuesday morning is the time set by Warden J. Warren Mead for the execution.

The chair in which Czolgosz will sit to receive the deadly electrical shock was examined Sunday and tested by State Electrician E. F. Davis, and is ready for the part that it is to play in the final scene of the great national tragedy.

When his death is accomplished, Warden Mead will give out a brief statement of the prisoner's last hours, including any confession he may make. The result of the autopsy will also be given out by the warden.

It is possible one of the Polish priests will visit Czolgosz, but there is still a question about the final reconciliation of the prisoner with the church in which he was baptized. He maintains the stolidity and indifference which have marked his conduct since his arrest.

THE MCKINLEY ARCH.

The William McKinley National Association Issues a Statement to the Public.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association Sunday night issued this statement to the public:

"President McKinley's memory is enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen. But the unexampled affection demands expression in a material memorial, national in character, to be erected at the national capital, the scene of his greatest labors and achievements. The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association has been incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia to meet this desire by the erection of a national memorial arch in honor of President McKinley in the city of Washington by national popular subscription.

"President Roosevelt has accepted honorary membership in the association.

"It is proposed to place the memorial arch preferably at the Washington approach to the memorial bridge across the Potomac connecting Washington with Arlington, which President McKinley earnestly desired and recommended to congress as a monument to American patriotism."

"Contributors to its fund will be made members of the William McKinley National Memorial Arch association. The treasurer, Hon. Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury of the United States, Washington, D. C., will receive all contributions and will forward certificates of membership to all contributors. Contributions of money may be handed to postmasters, managers of telegraph, telephone and express offices, and deposited with banks or other financial institutions and newspapers. They are hereby authorized and requested to receive and transmit contributions to the treasurer. The association heartily invites and confidently expects the co-operation of governors of states and territories, the mayors of cities, and all other public officials, of the press of the country, of the churches, colleges and schools, and of all organized cities, and requests that they will take immediate action to promote its objects by making and securing subscriptions. All communications except remittances should be addressed to Thomas F. Walsh, secretary, Washington, D. C.

"The association is in entire sympathy with the proposition to erect a suitable memorial to the late president at his grave in Canton, O."

FILLER TOBACCO.

An Attempt Will Be Made to Raise It Within the Boundaries of the United States.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Secretary Wilson announced Sunday that experts of the agricultural department will hunt all over the United States and its new possessions for conditions favorable to the cultivation of the filler tobacco, such as is now raised in Cuba, so that if possible all the filler tobacco used in this country eventually may be raised within the boundaries of the United States.

"The United States," he says, "is now paying $8,000,000 for wrapper tobacco. We have succeeded in finding in this country the conditions under which all the wrapper tobacco we need can be raised here, and experts of the department of agriculture for the first time are seeking soils adaptable to the cultivation of the fine filler product. We have parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Texas selected for the investigations of our experts, and land for similar purposes will be selected in our new island possessions, with a view to ascertaining how and under what conditions the filler product can be built up here."

KING EDWARD'S DISEASE.

A London Paper Announces That His Majesty Is Suffering From Cancer of the Throat.

London, Oct. 28.—Reynolds' weekly newspaper is the first British paper to assert that King Edward is suffering from cancer of the throat. In Sunday's issue it declares that since his majesty's accession three operations have been performed for the removal of papilloma on the left vocal chord, and that one was removed from the right vocal chord last week.

"Assistance was hastily summoned," says the journal, "as his majesty was breathing with difficulty and an immediate operation was performed. But it was regarded as only a temporary relief, the injured epithelium now having become a cancerous growth, and serious developments are expected."

A BATTLE NEAR PASSI.

Twenty-Five Insurgents Killed and Three Captured.

Stringent and Energetic Measures Are Being Taken By Americans to Suppress the Insurrection on the Island of Samar.

Manila, Oct. 28.—The constabulary report a fight with insurgents near Passi, province of Iloilo, Island of Panay, in which 25 insurgents were killed and three captured, together with a quantity of arms and ammunition.

The news from Gen. Hughes regarding conditions in the Island of Cebu is encouraging. Lorega has surrendered with his entire force and one cannon and seven rifles, while Gen. Hughes is negotiating for the surrender of Maxilot, who styles himself "governor politico-militar." His surrender will mean the pacification of the province.

Lack of food and the harassing effects of the aggressive tactics now pursued by the American forces are having their influence upon the natives. In many places where rice is doled out by the government only enough is given for one meal, so that it is hardly possible for any large quantity to find its way to the insurgents.

It is believed that the recent manifestations in the Island of Samar were chiefly due to the lack of food, the insurgents finding it necessary to make outlets to the coast in order to obtain this.

The first labor problem growing out of the new tariff has arisen. A hat and umbrella factory, employing 600 hands, has found it necessary to close. The lawyers are making a protest to the commission urging protection, as the same goods from Germany can be sold at half the price it takes to manufacture them here.

A dispatch from Catbalogan, Samar, says that stringent and energetic measures are being taken to suppress the insurrection in that island. Gen. Smith has notified all the presidents and head men of the Pueblos that, in order to avoid trouble they must surrender all arms and turn over the persons implicated in the Balangiga massacre before November 6, threatening that otherwise the presidents will be sent to the island of Guam, the villages destroyed and the property confiscated. Marines under Maj. Littleton W. T. Waller have been stationed at Balangiga and Basey and ten gunboats are vigilantly patrolling the Samar coast. Most of the towns in the southern part of the island have been destroyed.

Naval Cadet Loveman Noa, commanding the gunboat Mariveles, who had gone ashore at Nipa-Nipa, South Samar, to prevent smuggling, was attacked by the insurgents. He lost his revolver and was shot and killed.

THE PENSION OFFICE.

Brig. Gen. Frederick C. Ainsworth, Chief of the Record, Makes His Annual Report.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Brig. Gen. Frederick C. Ainsworth, chief of record of the pension office, in his annual report to the secretary of war, shows that 181,982 cases were received and disposed of during the fiscal year. His office relates mainly to records of officers and soldiers kept for the army and the pension officers. It also deals with medals of honor, as the record of soldiers receiving medals are furnished the proper officers through Gen. Ainsworth's bureau. He reviews at some length the subject of medals of honor, and the laws under which they are granted. Gen. Ainsworth says that the fiscal year has witnessed the practical completion of the work, so many years in progress, of the publication of official records of the union and confederate armies during the civil war. They make a total of 125,730 pages of text.

NO FORMAL CELEBRATION.

Sunday Was the Forty-Third Anniversary of the Birth of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Sunday was the 43rd anniversary of the birth of President Roosevelt. Occurring on Sunday, there was no formal celebration, and the day was spent very quietly. Dr. Nichols, a friend from Baltimore, was at the white house a portion of the day, and Sunday night Commander Cowles was a guest at dinner. The president attended religious services at Grace Reformed church as usual.

In Fiancee's Presence.

MONKEY SLEW THE SNAKE.

Strategy of the Bold Simian Was Too Much for the Cobra and the Former Won.

At Bangalore, India, not long ago a battle between a monkey and a snake was witnessed by a party of Europeans. The reptile, a cobra, was enjoying a sun bath near the highway, far from the beaten track of jungle travel, when the monkey espied him and deliberately put an end to his siesta by hurling at him every missile he could find. The snake wriggled awhile under the punishment, and then in a fury gave chase to the monkey. The little simian was far too agile for the reptile, however, and kept him at a safe distance until a pile of rocks was reached. On this the monkey calmly perched, with his back against a boulder, and awaited the onslaught.

The snake came up in blind rage, and again and again struck at the monkey, who dodged every blow, allowing the venomous head to strike the rock at his back. The cobra became more and more infuriated as he battered himself against the boulder, and at last, bleeding and exhausted, lay at full length with every fighting instinct subdued. This was the monkey's opportunity. Seizing the snake by the neck he quickly rubbed the head off against a sharp point of rock, and then climbed a tree and chattered gleefully at the admiring human spectators, who showed their appreciation of the spectacle he had afforded by leaving a banquet of Indian corn and sugar cane for the victor.

CHOICE "SMOKES" RECOVERED

How the Duke of Cornwall's Cigars Fared in the Wreck Beneath the Waves.

Private advices to a London tobacco dealer give the information that some 7,000 of the costly cigars shipped for the use of the duke of Cornwall and his suite while in Canada have been recovered from the hull of the wrecked liner Lusitania, on the east coast of Newfoundland. In all 10,000 of the highest class cigars, intended for royal use, were on the Lusitania, packed in hermetically sealed cases. They were consigned to the citadel at Quebec to await the arrival of the Ophir. Each cigar was valued at three shillings.

So choice were the costly "smokes" that, in case the crew might break open the cases, they were packed in the extreme stern of the ship and bolted behind heavy planking. When it became known to the islanders that the duke's cigars were part of the Lusitania's cargo, a patrol was established to search for boxes on the beach.

All the smokers on the island revelled in dreams of three-shilling cigars without stint. Speculators wanted them also. But their dreams came to nothing. Divers, after ten weeks' work, have now got at the cigars, and, according to the cable, have saved 7,000 in good condition. The other 3,000 were washed out of the wreck. Meanwhile, however, the duke's cigar order has been duplicated in London.

An Enterprising Yankee.

An American once went to Windsor castle and insisted upon seeing Queen Victoria. He was told that it was quite impossible, as an audience with the queen could be had only by appointment. Still he persisted, and then they told him flat-footed that before seeing the queen he must state the object of his visit. He said he wanted to show her a new piece of furniture—a throne bed, a perfect throne by day and a perfect bed at night.

Mrs. Ellen Ripley, Chaplain Ladies Aid, Grand Army of the Republic, No. 7, 222 10th Ave., N. E., Minneapolis, Minn., Strongly Endorses Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your Vegetable Compound cured me of ulceration of the womb, and getting such a complete cure I felt that the medicine had genuine merit and was well worth recommending to other sick women.

"For fifteen years I have been your friend. I have never written you before, but I have advised hundreds of women to take your medicine, in fact it is the only real reliable remedy I know of for a sick woman.

"I have not yet found a case of ovarian or womb trouble which has not been relieved or cured by the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You have brought health to hundreds of women in Minneapolis as you have no doubt to others over the country."—MRS. ELLEN RIPLEY.

$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE. When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine.

An Incomplete House.

We run wild over the furnishings of a house; its furniture, carpets, hangings, pictures and music, and always forget or neglect the most important requisite. Something there should be always on the shelf to provide against sudden casualties or attacks of pain. Such come like a thief in the night; a sprain, strain, sudden backache, toothache or neuralgic attack. There is nothing easier to get than a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, and nothing surer to cure quickly any form of pain. The house is incomplete without it. Complete it with a good supply.

The Last Word.

Mrs. Jigby (the discussion having become somewhat personal)—You may talk till doomsday, George Jigby, but you'll never get me to admit that a wife is bound to do as her husband tells her. Mr. Jigby—By gravity, madam, if I outlive you I'll have it engraved on your tombstone that you were a good and obedient wife!—Chicago Tribune.

Paradise for Sportsmen.

To him who knows not where to go, there can be no better place suggested than the Pocono mountains, lying in the northeastern part of Pennsylvania, along the beautiful Delaware river. Whether you go for health, or sport, you can hardly experience the latter without acquiring the former. The elevation of the mountains varies from 1,600 to 2,000 feet, and are one dense growth of pine and fir trees. Deer, bear and other large game are plentiful, and though the region is visited by thousands of sportsmen every year, there seems to be no noticeable decrease in the attractions offered. The Pocono mountain hotels, camps and game preserves are readily accessible by the Lackawanna Railroad, the great trunk line between New York and the Great Lakes.

Care of the Complexion.

Many persons with delicate skin suffer greatly in winter from chapping. Frequently the trouble arises from the use of impure soap and cheap salves. The face and hands should be washed only in clear, hot water with Ivory soap. A little mutton tallow or almond oil may be used after the bath to soften the skin. ELIZA R. PARKER.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Greens August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have never used anything in my life that did me the good that did," says County Physician Geo. W. Scroggs, of Hall county, Ga. "Being a physician, I have prescribed it and found it to give the best results." If the food you eat remains undigested in your stomach it decays there and poisons the system. You can prevent this by dieting, but that means starvation. Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer from neither dyspepsia nor starvation. The worst cases quickly cured. Never fails. W. T. Brooks.

Forewarned, Forearmed.

The liability to disease is greatly lessened when the blood is in good condition, and the circulation healthy and vigorous. For then all refuse matter is promptly carried out of the system; otherwise it would rapidly accumulate—fermentation would take place, the blood become polluted and the constitution so weakened that a simple malady might result seriously.

A healthy, active circulation means good digestion and strong, healthy nerves. As a blood purifier and tonic S. S. S. has no equal. It is the safest and best remedy for old people and children because it contains no minerals, but is made exclusively of roots and herbs.

No other remedy so thoroughly and effectually cleanses the blood of impurities. At the same time it builds up the weak and debilitated, and renovates the entire system. It cures permanently all manner of blood and skin troubles.

Mr. E. E. Kelly, of Urbana, O., writes: "I had Eczema on my hands and face for five years. It would break out in little white pustules, crusts would form and drop off, leaving the skin red and inflamed. The doctors did me no good. I used all the medicated soaps and salves without benefit. S. S. S. cured me, and my skin is as clear and smooth as any one's."

Mrs. Henry Siegfried, of Cape May, N. J., says that twenty-one bottles of S. S. S. cured her of Cancer of the breast. Doctors and friends thought her case hopeless.

Richard T. Gardner, Florence, S. C., suffered for years with Boils. Two bottles of S. S. S. put his blood in good condition and the Boils disappeared.

The Children's Friend.

You'll have a cold this Winter. Maybe you have one now. Your children will suffer, too. For coughs, croup, bronchitis, grip and other Winter complaints, One Minute Cough Cure never fails. Acts promptly. It is very pleasant to the taste and perfectly harmless. C. B. George, Winchester, Ky., writes: "Our little girl was attacked with croup late one night, and was so hoarse she could hardly speak. We have her a few doses of One Minute Cough Cure. It relieved her immediately and she went to sleep. When she awoke next morning she had no signs of hoarseness or croup. W. T. Brooks.

HEYMAN'S

SELLING OUT AT COST TO QUIT
BUSINESS.

Having decided to discontinue our Branch Store in this city, we herewith offer the entire stock at

FIRST WHOLESALE COST PRICE.

As you are well aware all these goods have been bought in the last 18 months and a complete fall stock was bought for this season, as we did not anticipate taking this step prior to going East. We have bought everything that is new and stylish, and no stock of Dry Goods, Notions, and Furnishings is larger nor more complete than ours. This is a rare opportunity for the people of this city and vicinity to buy their winter goods at cost price. It is an opportunity for the country merchants, for they can save the freight and buy many goods for less money than they can be bought for wholesale in Cincinnati to-day. All fixtures for sale. It is our intention to close out the entire stock by January 1st, so don't miss the opportunity and don't delay but get first pick of the stock. The prices we give will convince you that we mean business. We never did nor shall now mislead the people, but tell you the truth when we say that the stock must be sold within the next 90 days. To miss this opportunity to buy your fall goods will be a loss of 25 to 35 cents on every dollar's worth of goods you buy. Our fixtures consist of one large double desk; one iron safe, a few tables and show cases, all are offered at less than cost price.
